fiaf 2008 Paris
64th fiaf Congress
17 – 26 april 2008

Dear friends and colleagues,

Four weeks before the congress begins, the quantity of registrations we have received is at the height of our boldest forecasts. It is already certain that Paris 2008 will be the best-attended congress in the last ten years, and perhaps even in all of fiaf's history.

For the Centre national de la cinématographie (CNC), which is organizing this event, this is quite a challenge. For nearly two years, we have been doing our best to earn the honor you are granting us by being so many. Christian Dimitriu, Baptiste Charles, and the fiaf team in Brussels have patiently supported us, with rigor and kindness.

Working side by side with the CNC, the teams of the Cinémathèque française have also gone to great efforts to make sure that the beautiful new building designed by Frank Gehry, which currently houses one of the greatest temples to cinephilia, will stand for a week as the home of the fiaf and its members.

No logistical aspect has been overlooked; many rooms will be made simultaneously available for everyone's use – for the Symposium and the Second Century Forum, of course, but also for many commissions and regional group meetings.

Thus, our work over the course of five days can take place in the best possible conditions.

Be sure to keep your evenings free, to attend the exceptional screenings of cinematographic treasures in color, originating from collections all over the world, taking place in the Salle Henri Langlois of the Cinémathèque française (april 22, 23 and 25), and the Grand Auditorium of the Bibliothèque Nationale de France (april 21).

At the end of the screenings, we will meet each evening around 9:00pm at the Cinémathèque française, the Bibliothèque nationale de France, or the Hôtel de Ville de Paris, to share a friendly buffet with many of our guests.

Since the last newsletter, the list of our partners has expanded, and I would like to warmly thank Natixis, the Thomson Fondation for Film and Television Heritage, Éclair Group and France Culture, for their involvement and determination to generously accompany this event, which is so important for our federation.

Finally, I would like to send out warm greetings and thanks to our many speakers, for making themselves available, whether or not they are members of the fiaf. We have a lineup of forty specialists for the Symposium (april 21 and 22), who will share with us their knowledge on legal issues, their thoughts regarding the status of our institutions and collections, and their recommendations for how to better promote our missions and heritage. As for the Second Century Forum (april 23), it will be exceptionally rich: we will hear voices from Mozambique, Burkina Faso, Guinea-Bissau, Angola and South Africa, sharing their fears and hopes. We will listen, and then decide, along with the executive committee and the general assembly of fiaf, how to play our part in the unremitting struggle to preserve African heritage.

You will be able to look at the program of events in more detail in this third newsletter. We are looking forward to welcoming you, and are entirely at your service between now and the beginning of the congress.

Very sincerely,

Boris Todorovitch
Directeur du patrimoine cinématographique
Centre national de la cinématographie

dates and venues

The 64th fi af Congress will be held at the Cinémathèque française, from monday april 21 through saturday april 26, 2008. Executive committee meetings will be held april 18 – 20. The Symposium will take place on april 21 and 22. April 23 will be dedicated to the Second Century Forum. The fi af general assembly will be held on april 25 and 26.

At the Cinémathèque française, delegates will also be invited to a series of screenings entitled “Treasures in color from film archives” and to visit the exhibition on Georges Méliès. An 800 sq. meter tent has been especially set up in front of the Cinémathèque for lunches and evening events on april 22, 25, and 26.

The opening dinner on april 20, as well as a screening session followed by an evening cocktail reception on april 21, will take place at the Bibliothèque nationale de France (site François Mitterrand), where an exhibition will be held retracing the history of color in cinema in parallel with the program of restored color films.

The evening of april 23, after a screening taking place at 7:00pm at the Cinémathèque française, delegates will be invited to a cocktail reception organized by the mayor of Paris, Bertrand Delanoë, at the reception hall in the Hôtel de Ville de Paris.

The excursion day on april 24 will begin with a visit of the CNC French Film Archives at Bois d’Arcy, followed by a gala luncheon at the Château de Versailles; at the end of the luncheon, delegates will be granted private access to Marie-Antoinette’s estate. Finally, to close this exceptional day, delegates will be welcomed at the Gaumont Museum in Neuilly-sur-Seine, right next to Paris.

Paris Symposium 2008 April 21 and 22, 2008

Pandora's box: film archives and the question of rights

Twelve years after the Congress in Jerusalem, fiaf is organizing a Symposium on the legal environment surrounding cinematographic works by initiating a discussion on the prickly question of rights. Relations between producers, film cataloguing administrators, and archiving organizations often unfold in an emotional climate that should be reconsidered.

The Symposium will be based on lectures by specialists from all around the world: historians, archivists, lawyers, and rightsholder representatives. A special focus will be given to round tables on legal deposit, the public domain, and orphan films.

Other topics to be addressed will include the role of rightsholders and the film archive community, the future of relations between rightsholding and archive companies at the dawn of the digital age, contracts for using preserved and restored films, and the ownership of restorations. Several case studies will be used to fuel the debates, and the public will be able to participate through Q&A sessions.

Second Century Forum Paris 2008 The Cinémathèque africaine is ten years old A gloomy anniversary

Selected at the end of the general assembly of the 2007 Congress in Tokyo, the theme of the Second Century Forum will address a question we are all asking: what about the cinematographic heritage of Sub-Saharan Africa? In other words, will film heritage institutions finally be established in a permanent way, so that the composite cinematographic wealth of the African people can be preserved on African soil?

In the 1980s, the Pan-African Federation of Filmmakers called for the creation of the Cinémathèque africaine (African Film Library) at FESPACO. In 1998, this call led to the inauguration of the preservation center of the Cinémathèque Africaine in Ouagadougou. Today, however, the situation appears to be at a standstill, due to a lack of long-term financing. The air-conditioning system that protected the films is now almost non-operational. Films from the 60s and 70s are in danger, falling victim to vinegar syndrome. The program for film maintenance and restoration is stalled.

The situation in Ouagadougou is far from being unique. From Congo, Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau, and Mali, we receive calls for constructive help, including requests for skill transfers, film preservation equipment, hardware and software to build up inventories, but also for repatriation of African films that are preserved everywhere... except in Africa.

The Thomson Fondation for Film and Television Heritage, which has a great deal of experience acquired through working with film archives and cinémathèques on all continents, in particular during the creation of the Bophana center in Cambodia, is sponsoring this forum. At the end of the forum, specific solutions will be proposed by the fi af to officials coming all the way to Paris to talk about the situation of the film heritage which they are in charge of and responsible for.

speakers

Guido Convents is a cinema historian. Since the 1980s, he has published works about African cinema, particularly in the Belgian Congo, Rwanda-Urundi, Zaire, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda, and Burundi. Along with Guido Huysmans, he is the creator of Afrika Filmfestival, which takes place at Leuven, in Belgium.

Ardiouma Soma is the director of the Cinémathèque Africaine in Ouagadougou.

Henning Mankell is a well-known Swedish author, known in particular for his detective novels. He spends his time between Sweden and Mozambique, where he is very active in the field of culture. He is highly involved in defending cinematographic heritage, and has actively contributed to bringing the Svenska Filminstitutet in Stockholm into closer contact with leaders in Mozambican cinema.

Pedro Pimenta is the director of the documentary film festival Dockanema in Maputo. His long-term experience as an independent producer in a region that is now marked by South African influence has led him to take a position on questions relating to the film heritage of Mozambique.

Carloz Vaz is the president of the National Cinema and Audiovisual Institute in Guinea-Bissau.

Séverine Wemaere is the managing director of the Thomson Fondation for Film and Television Heritage.

Jean-Pierre Garcia is the director of the International Film Festival in Amiens, which for over 20 years has been coupled with Fespaco and Vues d'Afrique. He has notably published Sous l'arbre à palabres: guide pratique à l'usage des cinéastes africains (Under the Tree of Endless Discussions: a Practical Guide to African Filmmakers).

Joie Springer represents the Information Society Division of UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization).

Bengt Orhall is an expert and consultant in the field of cinematographic technical industries and film preservation. He is the author of a recent report for the Svenska Filminstitutet in Stockholm on the film archives of Maputo.

Gaston Kaboré currently directs the Imagine Institute in Ouagadougou, which was created in 2003 and dedicated to providing training in the fields of image and sound. It was designed as a place of exchange for collective memory and audiovisual heritage.

Djalma Luiz Félix Lourenço is the director of the National Cinema and Audiovisual Institute of Mozambique.

Boris Todorovitch, the director of cinematographic heritage at the CNC, will preside over the forum.

Wolfgang Klaue and Robert Daudelin, honorary members of the fiaf, will act as moderators.

discovering the departments of the Cinémathèque française

The Cinémathèque Française offers delegates the chance to learn about its different activities. These visits will provide opportunities to meet staff members, and better understand the services, collections, facilities and operation of the Cinémathèque. Delegates will be able to discuss techniques and occupations.

These visits are offered every day from Monday, April 21 through Friday, April 25. Registration by email (limited places).

Film library	5:00pm (French) 6:00pm (English)	cid@cinematheque.fr
image library, photo and poster / drawing departments	1:00pm	cid@cinematheque.fr
research area, archive and printed material departments	1:00pm	cid@cinematheque.fr
projection rooms	1:00pm	a.bidegorry@cinematheque.fr

In addition, a visit of the premises, followed by a presentation about the team and its activities, will be organized on wednesday, april 23, at 4:30pm. Aimed at providing information about the educational activities of the Cinémathèque, it will include a presentation of Cinéma, cent ans de jeunesse (Cinema, 100 years young), a think tank and educational experimental group to which many European archives are already associated.

Registration by email at the following address: g.sebire@cinematheque.fr

programming by Cinémathèque française and CNC's Archives Françaises du Film

the cinematographic adventures of color

The screenings offered at the Cinémathèque Française during the Congress pay tribute to the cinematographic adventures of color.

The films, originating from collections of fiaf member archives around the world, demonstrate both different coloring processes, such as those in the works of Georges Méliès, or Svend Gade and Heinz Schall's Hamlet (1920-1921) presented by the Deutsches Filminstitut, and the variety of color shooting techniques that punctuate cinema history.

Thus, the Technicolor of the 1920s with Victor Schertzinger's Redskin (Library of Congress in Washington), the Spanish Cinefotocolor in Ladislao Vajda's Doña Francisquita, 1953 (Filmoteca Española in Madrid), or the Gasparcolor with Ivo Caprino's Karius og Baktus, 1954 (Norsk Filminstitut in Oslo) will once again beam brightly with their specificities.

However, these techniques did not pass through the years without damage, and very particular restoration processes must be used in order to restore their original state. Satsuo Yamamoto's The Scarlet Cloak, 1958 (National Film Center de Tokyo) and Jean-Pierre Melville's Army in the Shadows, 1969 (French Film Archives-CNC), are exemplary works in this area.

As for Jacques Feyder's Carmen, it is emblematic for the Cinémathèque Française. Thanks to various elements of Albatros productions that were preserved, the original colors could be restored using the Desmetcolor process. This was carried out in the Haguefilm laboratory in Amsterdam. After nitrate processing, which mobilized everyone's efforts in the 1980s and 1990s, preserving, fixing and restoring color films that have been shot since the 1950s is now becoming the daily routine for cinematographic archives.

Today, archivists, chemists, and computer specialists gather together to discuss these issues.

This program also pays tribute to their teamwork to save this heritage which is under threat.

The full program is available at www.cinematheque.fr

exhibitions

Delegates are invited to visit two fascinating exhibitions.

Georges Méliès, Magicien du Cinéma will take place at the Cinémathèque Française.

Pleins Feux sur la Couleur! will take place at the Bibliothèque Nationale de France.

Pleins Feux sur la Couleur! (Spotlights on Color!)

The theme of color in cinema, addressed in the programming of the Cinémathèque Française, is illustrated at the Bibliothèque Nationale de France through a presentation of heritage documents under the title of Pleins Feux sur la Couleur! It brings together elements from its collections, as well as from the CNC's Archives Françaises du Film. Dialogues between sometimes unusual objects, works, and archives of cinema productions allow the greater public to understand the place of color in cinema within the history of color technologies and sensibility.

Georges Méliès, Magicien du Cinéma (Georges Melies, Cinema Magician)

The works of Georges Méliès have never stopped being sought after, gathered, and protected, against all odds. Today, they are safe enough to let out all their powers and their effects, just like a genie in a bottle. Pioneering works for the cinematograph, they will remain sources of inspiration for the inventors and creators of tomorrow. The exhibition features surprising projections and playful paths in the invented universe of a man who is a cross between Jules Verne and Professor Tournesol...

invitation to the Cinémathèque de Toulouse on april 28 and 29

The Cinémathèque de Toulouse, which has been a member of the fi af since 1965, invites fi af Congress participants to discover the archives in Toulouse during the week following the Congress. On Monday, April 28, a special evening will be held to honor Raymond Borde, the founder of the Cinémathèque. It will be followed on April 29 by a cinema-concert showing a very rare work by Danish filmmaker Carl Theodor Dreyer, with piano accompaniment by Karol Beffa.

Interested delegates can contact Cinémathèque de Toulouse directly to best organize their trips from Paris to Toulouse.

logistics and meals

A communication center will be available at the Cinémathèque Française, providing a photocopier, telephone and fax, computers, printers, internet access, and traditional pigeonholes. Coffee breaks, lunches, and most dinners will be taken care of by the Centre National de la Cinématographie (CNC). Audio and video recordings of the lectures will be made each day.

simultaneous interpretation

Simultaneous interpretation will be provided in English, French, and Spanish during the Symposium and the general assembly.

transportation

Paris has two main airports: Roissy-Charles-de-Gaulle in the north, and Orly in the south of Paris. They are served by many modes of collective and individual transportation, allowing easy access to east-central Paris, where the Congress will be held.

The RER B runs from Roissy-CDG to the center of Paris in 30 minutes.

ORLY is connected to the center of Paris by Orlyval and RER B, which take you into the center in 30 minutes.

currency

The Euro is the common currency of the 27 member countries of the European Union, and the sole currency used in 13 of those countries, including France. You can easily exchange your currency at airports, hotels, and banks.

passport and visa

Delegates are invited to make inquiries at the French embassies and consulates of their countries. Furthermore, the French website for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs provides information about visa regulations (www.diplomatie.gouv.fr/venir/visas/). European Union nationals do not require a visa to enter France.

admission and registration fees

Members and associates will be able to attend all Congress events for free, under the following conditions:

- four delegates per member archive
- two delegates per associate archive
- additional delegates from member or associate archives will be asked to pay a flat rate of 250€ for the entire Congress, allowing access to all events, including lunches, dinners, and evening events.

Speakers belonging to a member or associate archive who are invited by Congress organizers will not be counted in the quotas above.

donors / visitors

donor : 250 €

Donors and visitors will be able to attend all Congress events, including lunches, dinners, and evening events, with the exception of the general assembly.

Please note that the capacity of certain Congress venues cannot be exceeded; thus, late registration by visitors may result in restrictions of access.

Speakers invited by the fiaf will be attending all Congress events free of charge, including lunches, dinners, and evening events.

Registration forms can be downloaded at the website www.fiafCongress.org/2008

accommodations

Currently, many of the hotels offered by the Ptolémée agency in the 2nd newsletter no longer have rooms available for the Congress dates. Delegates who do not yet have accommodations can contact Ptolémée directly, to find out more about the possibilities currently available for hotel reservations.
